

Ambulance Service of New South Wales

media statement

30 August 2007

IRC directs USU to immediately lift bans

The dispute by the United Services Union (USU) was lodged with the NSW Industrial Relations Commission this morning.

Chief Executive of the Ambulance Service Greg Rochford said he was pleased that the IRC directed the USU to immediately lift all bans. The IRC directed that no further industrial action take place while the matter is before the Commission.

"I thank all of our call takers for their professionalism in maintaining service delivery to the community of NSW throughout the morning, with all calls being appropriately handled," Mr Rochford said.

~ ENDS ~